2010 Census Data for Southeast Michigan

The U.S. Census Bureau released 2010 Census data for redistricting purposes (Public Law 94-171 or “PL file”) on Tuesday, March 22, 2011. This dataset includes basic demographic data for each census block in Michigan. SEMCOG conducted preliminary analysis on this first set of detailed 2010 Census data. The following highlights, tables, and maps summarize the results.

Population

- Total population in Southeast Michigan changed from 4,833,368 in 2000 to 4,704,743 in 2010, a decrease of 128,625 people, or -2.7% in 10 years.
- U.S. population increased by 9.7% in the same time period.
- The City of Detroit’s population decline of 25% is dramatic but not unique. Chicago lost 200,418 or 7% in the decade; Cleveland lost over 17%; St. Louis is at its 1870 population level; and Pittsburgh continues to lose population since 1950. Yet, many of these places are experiencing economic rebirth.

Race and Hispanic Origin

- Similar to the nation as a whole, the region has continued to become more racially diverse.
- White population had the largest decline of -5.5%. Black population also declined but at a smaller rate of -3.2%. Meanwhile, Asian population increased by 36.4%; Hispanic population increased by 34.4%.

Age

- While detailed age data have not been released yet by the Census Bureau, this dataset shows significant decline in number of children (ages 0-17) in the region, -137,566 or -10.8%. This has serious implications on schools.

Households

- The total number of households had little change in the region, 1,845,218 in 2000 and 1,844,758 in 2010 (a decline of 460 households in 10 years). Detailed household and housing data have not been released yet.

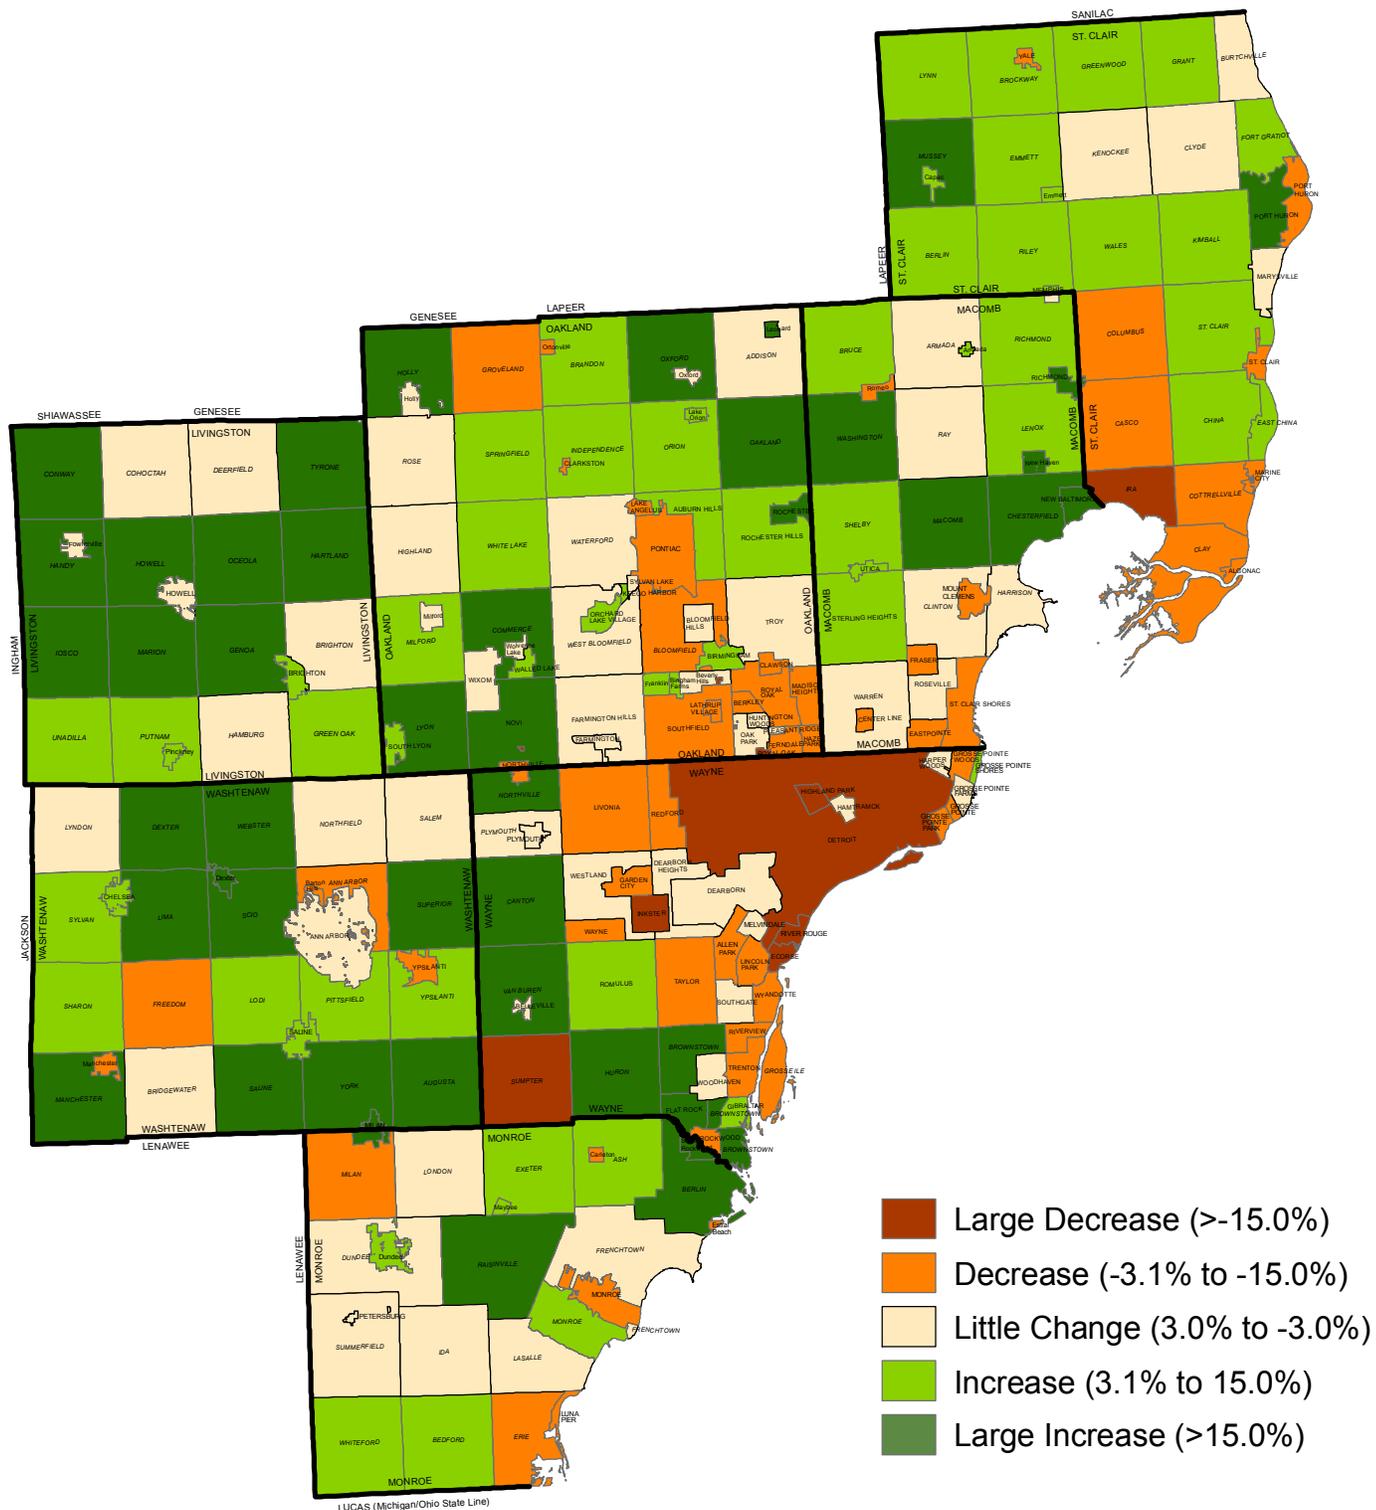

Housing Units and Vacancy Rates

- Housing units in the region increased by 108,851 or 5.6%, with most of the residential construction occurring in the first half of the decade.
- Vacancy rates nearly doubled from 5.5% to 10.5%. There were 215,991 vacant units in 2010.

Accessing the Data

- More data, including detailed population by age, households, and housing units by type, will be released by Census Bureau in summer 2011; social economic data such as income and poverty benchmarked to 2010 Census won’t be available until the end of 2011 from the American Community Survey (ACS).
- SEMCOG will make new data available as soon as they are released. You may find the data presented in this Quick Facts in the Community Profiles on SEMCOG’s Web site.
